LORD STANLEY, M. P. , and c. My Lord, --As one who, though little able to promote their welfare, feels a deep interest in the working people of this country, I heard your Lordships very able speech on the motion for promoting Sunday exhibitions with extreme concern. When a youthful statesman inherits, as your Lordship does, name and talent which assure to him an important influence in the State, even obscure individuals like myself have a personal interest in such of his opinions as bear upon morals and civil rights. I, therefore, with much deference, crave your Lordships attention to a few considerations, which may, at least, raise a doubt whether the views advanced by your Lordship, on the occasion referred to, do not hurtfully bear upon both. Nothing can be farther from my thoughts than to insinuate that your Lordship suspected any such tendency in your views. Indeed, your want of acquaintance with the practical bearings of the question was obvious, and is easily accounted for by your position, which has placed you far from the knowledge of those wrongs under which many smart, through Sunday oppression. Your Lordship laid down the general principle, --which is incontrovertible, --that no institution, however sacred, can be in itself an end; it must be a means to an end. Beside this we may place another general principle, --that if, in addition to the true ends of any institution,...
