Not illustrated. 1917 Excerpt: .(see Sec. 43), and he also managed to secure the passage of a law to establish schools in the other counties, although the establishment was not effected. In 1723 a system of county schools was established; pupils of all grades of learning were received and prepared for college. For about a century these were the only public schools of Maryland. An attempt was made in 1825 to reform the system, but very little was actually accomplished. The Constitution of 1867 required the legislature to establish a thorough and efficient system of free public schools, and accordingly laws were passed providing a regular organization of boards and officials to manage the schools and direct the work of the teachers. In 1914 an act of the legislature provided for a commission to conduct a school survey, that is, a careful study by experts of the entire educational work of the state. The result was a series of recommendations for improvements that were adopted by the legislature of 1916 in a completely revised code of school laws that is one of the best in the United States. Under the present organization there is a State Board of Education composed of seven members appointed by the governor. This board elects the state superintendent of schools, who serves as secretary, treasurer, and chief executive of the board and has large powers in the general direction and supervision of public education. For each county the governor appoints a County Board of Education,...
